About the 5th International Group Meeting (IGM) on Climate-Proofing Cereal Agriculture: Strategies for Resilience and Sustainability

Cereal agriculture is a cornerstone of global food security, providing sustenance for billions of people worldwide. However, the escalating impacts of climate change pose significant threats to cereal crops, thereby challenging food production and livelihoods. To safeguard against these challenges, it becomes imperative to adopt strategies that climate-proof agriculture, enhancing its resilience to the changing climate. Various approaches and technologies aimed at bolstering cereal farming systems include the adoption of climate-resilient varieties, diversification of crops, precision agriculture, climate-smart farming practices, and efficient nutrient management. Developing and promoting the cultivation of climate-resilient crop varieties is thus crucial. These varieties are specifically bred to withstand the challenges posed by extreme weather events, changing precipitation patterns, and elevated temperatures. Besides, advanced genetic engineering techniques including genome editing can accelerate the development of crops with enhanced resilience traits, such as drought tolerance, disease resistance, and improved nutrient efficiency.

In the present context, climate-proofing cereal agriculture is not only a necessity for ensuring global food security but also a critical step towards building resilient and sustainable farming systems. By embracing a combination of crop diversification, advanced breeding technologies, precision agriculture, water management, agroforestry, and climate-smart farming practices, we can empower farmers to navigate the challenges presented by climate change and secure the future of cereal production. This integrated approach is essential for creating a robust and adaptable agricultural sector capable of withstanding the uncertainties of a changing climate.

The 5th International Group Meeting (IGM) is being conceived to address these challenges and will provide a platform for researchers, academicians, extension workers, and students working in cereal crops to share and discuss their latest innovations and advancements in these crops primarily focusing on research. Moreover, IGM will provide invaluable opportunity to develop new collaborations and networking among professionals and experts across geographical boundaries to collectively address shared challenges. Through open dialogue, knowledge sharing and the establishment of international partnerships, this meeting will play a crucial role in fostering a more interconnected and collaborative global community through scientific deliberations.

Thematic areas

- Conventional breeding, biotechnology, bio-informatics, genetic engineering, phenomics, genomics and proteomics for cereal improvement
- Mitigation Strategies for abiotic stress management in cereal crops
- Biotic Stress dynamics under changing environments
- Cereal quality, nutrition, post-harvest processing, value addition and marketing for food safety and global nutritional security
- Climate change mitigation strategies, resource management, conservation agriculture, integrated farming for sustainable cereal production systems
- Industry linkages and agri-business for food and nutritional security

Background of International Group Meetings

Previously, the Wheat Research Technology Fund (WRTF) coordinated the three series of International Group Meetings (IGMs) on wheat. The first IGM on wheat was conducted at DWR, Karnal in 1997, emphasizing "Wheat Research Needs Beyond 2000 AD". The second IGM convened in 2002 at ARI, Pune, concentrating on 'Wheat Technologies for Warmer Areas.' Subsequently, the third IGM took place from February 9-12, 2011, at UAS, Dharwad, addressing "Wheat Productivity Enhancement under Changing Climate." The most recent fourth IGM, was jointly organized by IIWBR and SAWBAR during February 14-16, 2019, at CSKHPKV, Palampur, with a focus on "Wheat Productivity Enhancement through Climate Smart Practices."

Call for Abstracts

The organizers of 5th International Group Meeting on "Climate-Proofing Cereal Agriculture: Strategies for Resilience" invite abstracts from interested persons engaged in research, development, marketing, finance, export organizations and industries representing wheat. Abstracts will be evaluated by a group of eminent professionals for their suitability for oral/poster presentation. Authors are requested to specify the relevant thematic area in which the paper needs to be considered. Selected abstracts will be published as full length articles in the form of in the special issue of NAAS rated Journal of Cereal Research (NAAS 2024 ratings: 5.05) published by Society for Advancement of Wheat & Barley Research (SAWBAR), Karnal, Haryana, India. The Abstract should not be more than 250 words typed. The registered participants shall only be allowed for only one Oral or Poster presentations (as first author) based on selection by the technical screening committee. However, individual can be a co-author of abstracts submitted by other registered delegates.

Abstract Submission

The abstract can be submitted only online by uploading the files on conference website igm2024.eventsdashboard.in

Steps for Abstract Submission

- Register / Sign up
- Go to Participants Dashboard and click on Abstract Submission
- Fill in the details required for abstract submission and attach the abstract file in Word format prepared as per the guidelines provided.

Presentations & Language

Presentations include keynote and invited lectures (oral and poster presentations).

Awards

Best Poster and Oral presenters of each session will be felicitated with awards. Winners will receive certificates and mementoes.

Registration

All participants are required to register as per the schedule and pay the registration fee using the following link:
